MEMORANDUM TO: The Joint Committee

SUBJECT: Status of Third State Nationals

1. References:

a. Memorandum from Mr. Seki to Colonel Hanley dated April 16, 1953.

b. Memorandum from Colonel Thomson to Mr. Seki, 29 August 1953.

c. U. S. memorandum to the Joint Committee dated 19 October 1953, subject: Determination of Status of Limited Number of Third State Nationals Employed by United States Forces, Japan.

d. Memorandum JCJ-74-0689(G)-OM dated 22 October 1953, subject: Third State Nationals.

e. U. S. memorandum to the Joint Committee dated 23 October 1953, subject: Third State Nationals Including Chinese and Korean Technicians Employed by U. S. Forces.

f. Japanese Government memorandum to the Joint Committee dated 6 November 1953, subject: Third State Nationals Including Chinese and Korean Technicians Employed by U. S. Forces.

g. Japanese Government memorandum to the Joint Committee dated 1 February 1954, subject: Third State Nationals Including Chinese and Korean Technicians Employed by U. S. Forces.

h. Letter, Rear Admiral Hanlon to Mr. Iseki, 12 February 1954.

i. Paragraph 6, minutes of the 89th meeting of the Joint Committee dated 22 April 1954.

j. Letter, Mr. Iseki to Admiral Hanlon, 23 April 1954.

k. Paragraph 7, minutes of the 93d meeting of the Joint Committee dated 17 June 1954.

l. Paragraph 14, minutes of the 95th meeting of the Joint Committee dated 15 July 1954.

2. At the present time there are 43 Chinese, 42 Koreans, 4 Australians and 1 stateless individual who are employed in civilian positions in the U. S. Forces. They are performing classified duties in operations which are important to the security of Japan. The nature of these operations are such that Japan, as well as the U. S. Forces, have a vital interest in the uninterrupted performance of the services of these individuals.

3. The majority of these individuals were brought to Japan by U.S. Forces for the purpose of rendering services to the military services. In most cases these personnel were hired during the period of the Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers.

4. In many cases normal entry documentation was not accomplished due to the urgent immediate need for the services of these individuals.

5. The U. S. first suggested in the Joint Committee that the definition of "civilian component" be expanded to include these persons as "highly skilled technicians." This proposal was based upon the statements of Messrs. Rusk and Okazaki made at the time of the negotiations of the Administrative Agreement that individuals might be brought into Japan by the U. S. Forces as "highly skilled technicians." No agreement could be reached by the Joint Committee.

6. The U. S. now concurs with the Japanese Government that the employees belonging to this group, as listed in Inclosure 1, be registered with the immigration authorities thus establishing their legal status in Japan.

7. The U. S. does not desire to interfere with the application of Japanese domestic laws to these personnel. However, since the U. S. does possess information on the method and manner of entry into Japan of these individuals and has information as to the exact place of hire of each of them, the U. S. suggests, in a spirit of cooperation and assistance, the following classification be applied by the Japanese Government.

a. Those individuals who were hired outside of Japan and brought into Japan by the military forces should be registered under Section II, Article 4, paragraph 2 of the Immigration Control Order of 1951.

b. Those individuals who were hired within Japan should be registered under Section II, Article 4, paragraph 16 of the Immigration Control Order of 1951.

c. Those individuals who have already registered under Japanese law on their own initiative in categories other than specified by Section II, Article 4, paragraph 2 of the Immigration Control Order of 1951 would be examined jointly by U. S. and Japan on a case to case basis to determine the possibility or necessity of re-registration under Section II, Article 4, paragraph 2 of the Immigration Control Order of 1951.

d. Those employees who do not possess proper documentation will be registered after joint consultation by the U. S. and Japan when proper documentation has been accomplished.

8. The U. S. likewise has no desire to interfere with the normal functioning of the Japanese Government in its process of taxing Third State Aliens residing in Japan. However, since these employees from the time of original hire have been paid a lower salary than employees of the "civilian component" who have been engaged in similar types of work and since these employees were given the understanding at time of hire by the military services that their salary would not be taxed by the Japanese Government and since the problem of their status has been pending in the Joint Committee since the effective date of the Administrative Agreement, it is respectfully requested that any tax imposed not be retroactive..

9. These individuals by contract at the time of the original hire were promised by the military services the privileges or "fringe" benefits which later were enjoyed by the "civilian component" under the Administrative Agreement. The continuation of these privileges is considered to be not detrimental to the Japanese economy. Since the U. S. feels obligated, it will continue these privileges, including the privilege of payment in military payment certificates.

10. At the termination of their present employment the U. S. will attempt to replace personnel in this group by either U. S. citizens or Japanese Nationals under the condition of clear understanding that the classified nature of the services to be performed compels exclusion of any Japanese Nationals from the Master Labor Contract. When the nature of the qualifications of a position is such that a replacement must be a National of Third State, the U. S. assures the Japanese Government that such replacements will be registered with the Japanese Government at the time of hire.

11. By reference 1b above, the U. S. furnished the Japanese Government a list of 120 Chinese and Korean Nationals employed by the U. S. Forces. Inclosure 1 reflects certain changes. The Japanese Government will be informed of all future changes.

12. If the proposals stated above are accepted by the Japanese Government it is recommended that a special Ad Hoc Committee be established for the purpose of determining the registration classification of each of the individuals.
